It's been 15 years since we threaded that first needle. Fifteen years since I created that first panel for my best friend Marvin Feldman. And since then more than 100,000 of you have shared in that experience - the experience of trying to sum up a life in a 3 x 6-foot panel. Panels have found their way to us from every state in the nation and every continent in the world - the panel of a young mother from Iowa now rests by that of a fireman from San Francisco. A panel for a student from New York is joined to one remembering a newborn from Atlanta. By connecting these lives we have created the largest piece of community folk art in the world, a living memorial to a generation lost.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt didn't start with yards of fabric but rather with a few hundred soggy hand-written poster boards. In November of 1985, during the annual march to mark the assassinations of San Francisco Supervisor Harvey Milk and Mayor George Moscone, the idea was born. Earlier in the day I had handed out poster board and asked everyone to write down the name of a friend who had died of AIDS. That Thanksgiving night we marched up Market Street to City Hall and then on to the old Federal Building. There, we crawled up three stories and covered the face of the building with this poster-board memorial.

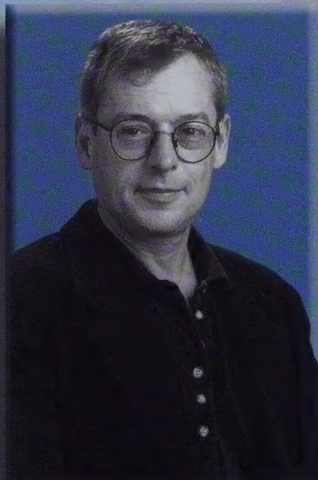

Standing in the drizzle, watching as the posters absorbed the rain and fluttered down to the pavement, I said to myself, "It looks like a quilt." As I said the word 'quilt', I was flooded with memories of home and family and the warmth of a quilt.

I had a vision of building on that legacy - creating individual quilts for friends and family and joining them together into a larger tapestry that would give our fight against AIDS a shape and a voice that could be heard beyond our community, beyond our town. In 1987, I made Marvin's panel and founded The NAMES Project. Fifteen years later panels continue to be made and lives continue to be remembered.

Together, we have made art - wonderful, intimate, epic, healing art. With this calendar we look behind the panels to the artists, the survivors, the panel makers - mothers and fathers, sons and daughters, friends, lovers and partners who have each felt the devastation of this pandemic called AIDS and who we hope have found some small solace in something as simple as a needle and thread.

Wishing you all the best,

Calvin Jones

You do not need to be an artist or know how to sew to create a moving, personal tribute to a friend or loved one. Whether you choose paint on a bed sheet or sew elaborate embroidery is up to you - any remembrance is appropriate.

If you decide to make a Panel

Contact us at www.aidsquilt.org or in Atlanta at (404) 688-5500. We'll send you a Panel Maker information card that must be submitted with your panel.

Designing your Panel

When designing your panel, remember that the Quilt will be folded and unfolded many times, so durability of design and materials used is crucial to the longevity of your panel.

Size and back- ground material

The size of a completed panel is 3'x6'. Select a durable and medium weight non-stretch fabric for the background.

Assembling your Panel

Your design can be horizontal or vertical. You might want to sew, paint or stencil letters and small mementos onto the background fabric. If you want to include photos, we suggest you use iron-on transfers of photocopied images.

Please take time to include a letter or note about the person you are remembering. This information will be included in the AIDS Memorial Quilt Archive.

When your Panel is finished

Pack-up everything and send it to:
The NAMES Project Foundation
101 Krog Street Atlanta, GA 30307

When your Panel arrives in Atlanta

We'll send you a card confirming its arrival. Eight panels are then sewn together to create a 12' x 12' section. Each section is given a number, photographed for the Archive, and ready to tour the nation.

The Lord Is My Shepherd
I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures:
He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He shall restore my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil:
for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff
they comfort me.

"When Rosa Parks handed me the Quilts (including the panel for Deborah Haynes) she'd just made for her neighbors, she wanted to relish only their lives, not the divisions, just memorialize her friends and what they'd meant to her. 'You're doing a wonderful thing young man,' she'd said. There were no tears in her eyes, just a message for me to continue."

"His panel is pretty simple. I only put his first name in puffy letters so they would stand out because he was a very unique person who always stood out. I painted the background blue and green to represent the sky and the grass because he loved the outdoors. I painted 'I Love You' in red, the color of blood. Even though he had something a little wrong with his blood, that never changed my love for him. The knitted piece represents an afghan. He was always cold. I just learned how to knit and my goal was to make him an afghan for his 33rd birthday. That would have been August 30, 1992." – Kerri Vandiver

THE AIDS MEMORIAL QUILT

"It was my original intention to create the Quilt panel alone, but it proved to be too overwhelming a task. In the end, I depended upon the help of our wonderful friends to complete the panel. The dark blue background is a sheet from our bed. Each picture represents Garth with the people (me), pets (Tigger), things (his garden at 530 Kansas Street, his 1982 Jeep Renegade), and places (Washington, DC) that he loved." - Danny Sauro

"My mother-in-law asked me to finish my father-in-law's panel in time for the showing of the Quilt in DC'96. At that time, I did not know I would need to sew hers also. I sewed them together, so they would be 'Together Forever'."

THE AIDS MEMORIAL QUILT

"When Betty found out they were HIV positive, she went around and talked to others about the disease. You see before you a mother of three, grandmother of eight and a widow as of March 1994. They didn't fit any pattern, any age group, any lifestyle. But they were asked to do an HIV/AIDS test. They were positive. My father-in-law had full blown AIDS. AIDS knows no boundaries. Anyone is at risk." – Liz A. Ashby

"I think the young people who made these panels were profoundly affected. One young man, who on the first visit was haughty, aloof and put out by the discussion, approached me after the presentation of the completed panel with tears in his eyes and said, 'I understand now. Thank you for changing my life!'"

THE AIDS MEMORIAL QUILT

"In the summer of 1994, the Jewish community in Atlanta realized that AIDS does affect them too and they initiated a program, Awakening the Jewish Heart to AIDS. Since I had created a panel, I was asked to give a talk to two summer youth camps about AIDS and the Quilt. Sadly at their young ages (13-18) they already knew seven friends or relatives who had died. I asked them if they wanted to create a panel in memory of those they lost. I broke them into small groups and each group came up with a pencil sketch of a one-square-foot panel. I took the sketch back to Atlanta and spent the next 36 hours at the sewing machine turning their sketches into a colorful and appropriate memorial." – Rick Namors

2002 Calendar

This year we mark the 15th Anniversary of the founding of the NAMES Project and the creation of the first panels of the AIDS Memorial Quilt. With this calendar we look behind the panels to the artists – the panel makers – whose stories of love and loss have helped heal, educate and inspire thousands.

The AIDS Memorial Quilt is the most powerful symbol of the AIDS pandemic. Now weighing over 54 tons, The Quilt is the largest community folk art project in the world, containing over 45,000 individual panels dedicated to more than 80,000 individuals lost to AIDS.
